Beware of Phishing

Scam artists have moved to the newest way to scam consumers—phishing via phone or text messaging.

Scammers send fictitious text or automated voicemail messages to consumers stating that cards or accounts will be blocked or require activation or maintenance. The message recipients are asked to input their personal or financial information (including card numbers, expiration date, PIN, and CVV codes) in order to take care of the problem.

The messages may appear legitimate, but subsequently result in fraud.

Protect yourself and do not respond to text or automated phone messages requesting personal or financial account information. If you are a recipient of one of these fraudulent messages—report the number to your wireless provider immediately in an attempt to shut it down.

Coming Soon...

Mobile Money will be making its debut on your mobile device! CCU is in the process of making account access even easier when you are on the go. Watch for details!
